Foundational Years

The Foundational Stage (ages 3-8) is designed to nurture young learners through play-based and activity-based learning. The primary objective is to develop cognitive, affective, and psychomotor abilities in children through various teaching learning activities. Core to this approach is building foundational literacy and numeracy skills, setting a strong base for future learning. Through a blend of fun and learning, we aim to create a stimulating environment that supports overall growth and development.

Preparatory Years

The Preparatory Stage (ages 8-11) focuses on discovery-based, interactive learning. The objective during this stage is to build foundational skills while gradually introducing more formal classroom learning. Key features include experiential learning, where students actively engage with concepts, and the use of textbooks to ensure a balanced approach. This stage also emphasizes the development of critical thinking, encouraging students to explore ideas, ask questions, and think independently, laying the groundwork for more advanced learning in the future.

Middle School Years

In the Middle Stage (ages 11-14), the focus shifts to subject-oriented learning, designed to deepen student's understanding of core subjects. The objective is to encourage abstract thinking and promote a more profound grasp of various disciplines. This stage introduces students to coding and vocational education, allowing them to explore practical skills alongside academic learning. Experiential learning continues to be a key feature, enabling students to apply their knowledge through hands-on activities in subjects like science, mathematics, arts, and social sciences.

Secondary Years

The Secondary Stage (ages 14-18) emphasizes a multidisciplinary study approach, fostering critical thinking and problem-solving skills. The objective is to prepare students for higher education and future employment by offering them a broad academic foundation. Key features include flexibility in subject choices, allowing students to tailor their education to their interests and career aspirations. Project-based learning is central to this stage, enabling students to engage deeply with topics and develop practical skills that are essential for real-world success.
